Manhattan Door takes the "LEED" toward GREEN.

Today, sustainable development is not only an important environmental consideration, but it is also one of the most effective ways to reduce building operating costs. The U.S. GREEN Building Council (USGBC) is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit community of leaders working to make GREEN buildings available to everyone within a generation. Its LEED certification system provides building owners and operators with a concise framework for identifying and implementing practical and measurable GREEN building design, construction, operations and maintenance solutions.

A breadth of knowledge and a keen understanding of LEED criteria have become entry requirements to many current construction projects in the tri-state area. Manhattan Door's FSC-certified products have been "LEED-ing" the way in environmentally sustainable developments in our industry for years.

Manhattan Door can maximize your LEED points because its GREEN products are:

- FSC-certified for wood content under Pure, Mixed, and Controlled Wood product classifications.
- Manufactured within a 500-mile radius.
- Offered with natural agri-fiber cores.
- Formaldehyde-free.
- Produced without added urea formaldehyde.
- Finished using Zero/Low VOC paints and coatings.
- Made with pre-consumer recycled content.

Here at Manhattan Door, we are experts in meeting USGBC LEED accreditation requirements. Give us your blueprint and project specs, and we'll make sure that all wall panels and doors are correctly manufactured and properly sequenced because we offer the highest standards of professional excellence.
